February 1, 2025

Barbara Bush

Barbara Bush, born Barbara Pierce on June 8, 1925, in New York City, was a prominent figure in American history, known for her role as the First Lady of the United States and her contributions to various charitable causes.

Personal Life

- Early Life: Barbara was born to Marvin Pierce, the publisher of McCall's magazine, and Pauline Robinson Pierce. She grew up in Rye, New York, and attended Smith College before dropping out to marry George H. W. Bush in 1945.

- Family: Barbara and George H. W. Bush had six children, including George W. Bush, the 43rd President of the United States, and Jeb Bush, the 43rd Governor of Florida. She was known for her strong family values and dedication to her children.

- Later Years: Barbara Bush passed away on April 17, 2018, in Houston, Texas, at the age of 92.

Professional Life

- First Lady: Barbara served as the First Lady of the United States from 1989 to 1993 during her husband's presidency. She was known for her focus on family literacy and founded the Barbara Bush Foundation for Family Literacy in 1989.

- Second Lady: Before becoming First Lady, she was the Second Lady of the United States from 1981 to 1989 while her husband served as Vice President.

- Charitable Work: Barbara was actively involved in various charitable causes, including raising money for the United Negro College Fund and volunteering at The Washington Home, a hospice for chronically ill patients.

- Public Speaking and Writing: She delivered notable speeches, such as the commencement address at Wellesley College, and authored several books, including two about her family dogs.

Barbara Bush's legacy is marked by her dedication to family, literacy, and public service, making her a beloved and respected figure in American history.